BACK TO NATURE: Machrihanish Dunes, on the Mull of Kintyre, has been created to blend with the natural lie of the land and can be enjoyed as part of a sensational golfing break at the Village at Machrihanish Dunes

Discover the Mull of Kintyre

The Village at Machrihanish Dunes is the ideal golf holiday destination

IMMORTALISED in song and tale, the Mull of Kintyre is a must-visit haven for a relaxing holiday break - and well worth the visit for any travelling golfer.

And, if you're considering making the trip to the West coast peninsula, you should bear in mind the accommodation, golf and service on offer at the Village at Machrihanish Dunes.

Consisting of Dunes Golf Club, the Old Clubhouse Pub & Restaurant and Ugadale

Hotel, it provides a holiday setting that can rival the best in the world.

During your stay, in connection with renowned tour operator Scotia Travel, you can unwind amidst the luxurious confines of the award-winning Ugadale Golf Cottages, which overlook the Atlantic Ocean and the famous first tee of Machrihanish Golf Club.

Right next door, you'll find the Old Clubhouse Pub & Restaurant, which has undergone a complete interior transformation, and is ideally situated and provisioned to cater to your every whim.

QUALITY

Then, of course, there are the sensational golf courses this stretch of coastline plays home to. The Machrihanish is known as a traditional links of the highest quality.

Machrihanish Dunes, meanwhile, was created more recently by David McLay Kidd and combines beautifully with the natural terrain for which the region is famous.

If you think it's about time you treated yourself to some time away, contact Scotia Travel, which has been arranging holidays with Loganair - the airline that flies right into Campbeltown - for more than 25 years.

This places them perfectly for creating tailor-made deals for both small groups and large golf societies. To find out more, visit www.scotiatravel.com.
